Some Financial Aid Tips

Earn good grades. Merit scholarships reward students who achieve a high level of academic success in high school.

Open a savings account and begin setting funds aside to help meet your future college costs.

Get a part-time job or a summer job. If you will be receiving financial aid in college, you will probably be expecting to earn about $1,000-$15,000 during your college summer vacation.

Begin researching possible financial aid options at least one year prior to your freshman year of college.

Create your own "Financial Aid File." Keep all financial aid information in this folder or envelope. A photocopy of all forms and applications you submit should also be placed in this file.

Buy an appointment book. In it, note all financial aid application deadlines. Refer often to the book.
Get a scholarship Calendar with all the deadlines

Ask colleges which form you should file in order to be considered for financial aid. All colleges require the Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA). UC and some other schools also require the College Scholarship Service PROFILE form.

Remind your parents to prepare their income tax statements as early as possible, the FAFSA award is dependent on parents income. Photocopy your income tax statement because some colleges require them for financial aid.

Contact your school's college or guidance counselor to find out about scholarships rewarded by local civic groups and professional organizations.

Ask your parents to inquire about financial aid programs sponsored by their employees.

If your parents served in the armed forces, find out if there are veteran's benefits for which you might be eligible.

Suggest to your parents that they seek professional advice from an accountant, tax preparer or certified financial strategy to cover your college costs.

Review your applications before photocopying and submitting them. If there are errors on your original application, then you may have to submit a new one, and financial aid funds could have been depleted in the interim.

Don't be shy about contacting a college's financial aid office if you have questions about the application process. Be persistent.

Inquire at individual schools about their internal financing programs. These may enable you to spread payments for college tuition, fees and housing over several months, take out short-term loans at low interest rates, or participate in insured tuition payment plans.

Remember that you will have to reapply for financial aid every year that you are in college. Throughout your college years, keep your "Financial Aid File" current and be aware of all application deadlines.

Look in your school or local public library for publications and software programs that list additional financial aid tips or resources.

Apply for California State grants by filling out the Cal grant form. See your college counselor for more information.

The Internet offers information on many scholarship opportunities. Try searching under different key topics such as financial aid and scholarships on different search engines, such as Google, Yahoo, etc.
